ANNIE'S LIST ENDORSED CANDIDATES WIN BIG ACROSS TEXAS

Austin, TX: Today, the results from the 2022 primary elections revealed that the majority of Annie's List-endorsed candidates have won or are progressing to a runoff.

"From Dallas down to Brownsville and against all odds, Texas women showed up and proved that the future of Texas is in our hands," said Executive Director Royce Brooks.

Of the endorsed candidates, progressive women made significant gains in the Southern part of Texas with Erin Gamez who will be the first woman to represent Texas House District 38; Josey Garcia for Texas House District 124 who, if elected, will be the first female veteran in the Texas House; and Becca Moyer DeFelice who, if elected, would be the first Asian woman to represent Texas House District 121. Sara Stapleton-Barrera also advanced to a runoff in Senate District 27.

"Texas leadership is beginning to look more like Texas. The South Texas electorate plays a critical role in statewide and national elections, and Annie's List has been making a concerted effort to cultivate women's leadership in South Texas," said Brooks.

Annie's List-endorsed candidates also claimed victories in Statewide races, with Rochelle Garza and Janet Dudding as the frontrunners in their respective races for Attorney General and Comptroller, and with Susan Hays securing the Democratic nomination for Agriculture Commissioner.

"Progressive women have fierce representation at the top of the ballot with Rochelle Garza, Janet Dudding, and Susan Hays — if anyone can take on corrupt, unjust Republican leaders in the general election, it's these women," said Brooks.

Other victories from Annie's List-endorsed candidates include Alexandra Guio, who will be advancing to the runoff in Texas House District 114, and Neeta Sane, who is also advancing to a runoff for Fort Bend County Commissioner - Precinct 4.
